Growing up sometimes means saying goodbye

The Flambeau was a sign of the end of the school year . . . a time many students said good bye to many different things.

Students said good bye to friendships, as they don't always have a chance to stay in touch with the friends they met while in school. Both seniors who were leaving, and sophomores or juniors who would return found themselves saying good bye.

Seniors said good bye to Lincoln, its students, and its teachers. Some also said good bye to Manitowoc as they left for college and pursued their careers.

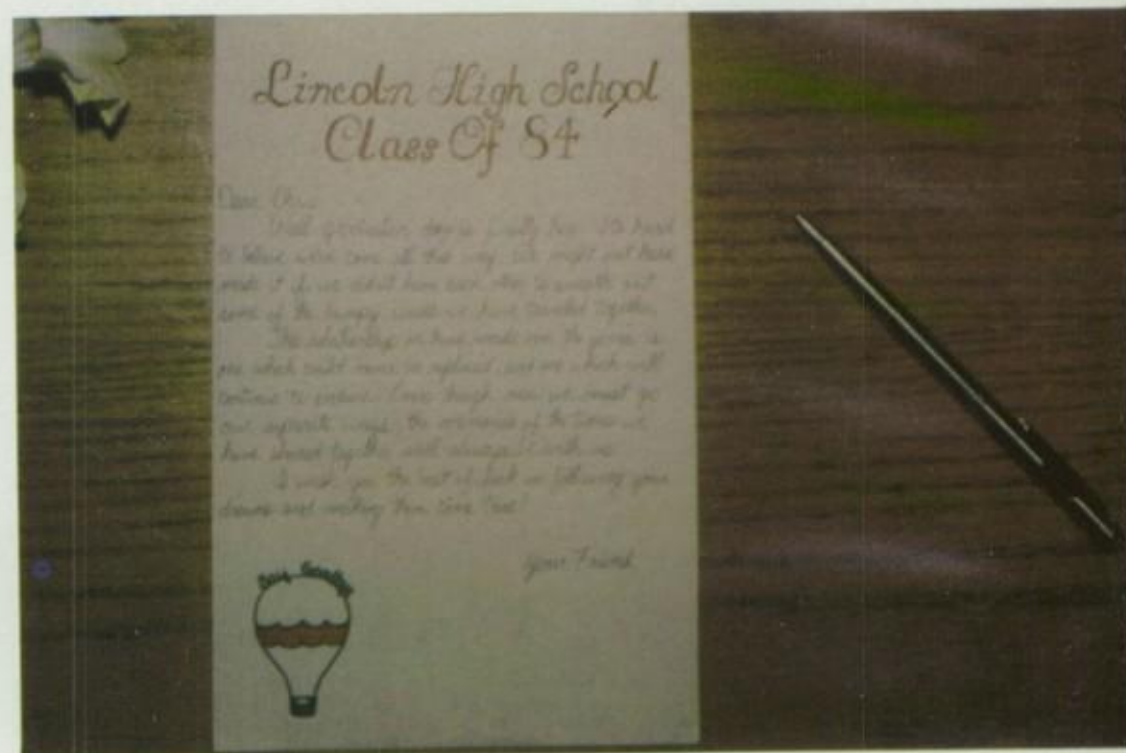

Juniors said good bye to school for the summer. Chemistry, American literature, and U.S. history were things of the past for most of them.

Sophomores said good bye to walking, as most were soon to earn their drivers' licenses. Biology, Drivers' Ed., and geometry were no longer classes to worry about. The fear of being caught by a junior or senior on "sophomore day" haunted them no more.

Since "Saying Good Bye" is such an important part of high school life, we have selected it as the theme for Flambeau '84.

1 — Footprints in the sand illustrated the uncertainty of seniors walking off into future endeavors. 2 — This letter represents the efforts of students to preserve friendships they made while at Lincoln. 3 — Many people said good bye to special friendships. 4 — This picture symbolizes the many different paths students took after graduation. 5 — Students waved good bye after school as they left for home. 6 — One of the first signs of leaving for college or for a different city was the packing up of all your belongings.

Faces showed our feelings

Faces and actions express many different moods and feelings. Lincoln students expressed a variety of moods at various times. Smiling faces and laughter were seen and heard on many different occasions, as well as the tears and sad faces of 'Saying Good Bye.'

1 — Scott Zube and Debbie Krainik spent time quietly playing chess in the cafe. 2 — Gail Stock seemed happy after a long day of school. 3 — Lisa Thielen, Jenny Osman, and Kris Fischer smiled for the photographer. 4 — Mike Arndt seemed a bit confused.

Prom '83 . . . a Night of 'Southern Dreams'

Prom 1983 was filled with "Southern Dreams." The evening began with the Pre-Prom party at the Elk's Club, hosted by Queen Amy Emme.

The dance took place in the old gym which was decorated in pastel colors with the setting of a southern plantation. Outdoor scenery of front porches and trees helped create the mood. The band "Secrets" provided the entertainment from 8 p.m. to midnight.

During intermission, the sound of trumpets announced the arrival of the King Andy Dramm and Queen Amy Emme for the crowning ceremony. Entertainment was provided by Keith Marquardt and Chris Maloney who sang "Up Where We Belong". Lori Sitzman and Kevin Vogt performed "Because of You" and the Chamber Orchestra played "Longer".

After the dance ended, the fun continued. Post-Prom, which was held at Meadow Links, was sponsored by the Kiwanis Club. Its theme was, "We've Got Tonight". Couples bowled, ate, shot pool, and listened to music which was provided by a D.J. from 1 to 4 a.m. Altogether, everyone had a great time.

Rubick, Pascal Schroeder, Sharol Zimmer, Laurie Olson, Larry Dabb, Sue Zimmer, and Rick Roulette posed for the camera at Prom. 7. — Chris Toebe, Karen Lovelien, and Sarah Gigure seemed to be having a good time at Prom.

Flambeau signing kept memories alive

Flambeau signing represents the closing of another school year. The weather was fair but seemed to get a little cool by the end of the night, but students were prepared for the cool night air.

Students showed up to say their goodbyes and wish each other luck in the future. The courage and confidence that students received from both teachers and friends will always be helpful toward the many things they want to achieve. For many seniors it seemed hard to say good bye to high school and hello to the next stage of their lives.

For some students it was a fun goodbye but for others it was sad. Their signatures and comments will always be treasured as other students look forward to their senior year . . . and years to come.

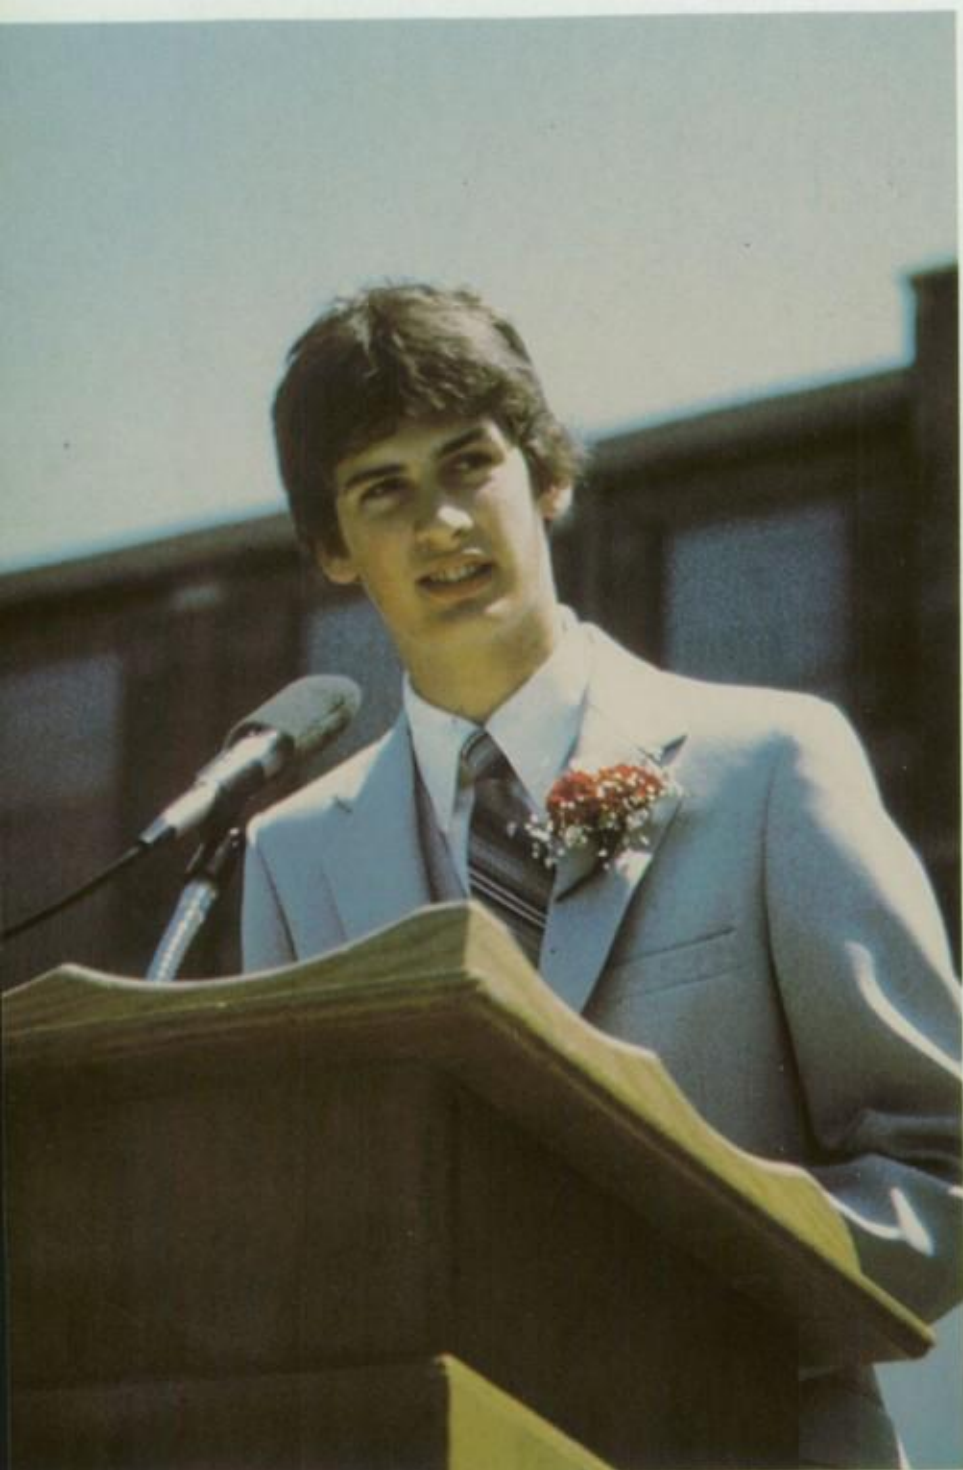

1 — Karen Held and Patti Lang showed a rather unique way of signing yearbooks. 2 — Kraig Kohlmeir, Ken Kortens, Pete Barta, and Bill Sabin talked while signing Flambeaus. 3 — A group of juniors gathered around the Lincoln statue at Flambeau signing. Front row — Lisa Maertz, Lenore DeSouto, Paula Kohlmeier, and Wendy Thompson; Row 2 — Linda Jadowski and Lisa Neuser; back row — Maria Schmatz, Lisa Zietlow, and Tina Nichols. 4 — Tim Place and Ron Simino signed yearbooks on a tandem bike. 5 — Rob Dupras and Jeff Zucchi exchanged signatures while laying on the grass. 6 — Jon Elmore and Mark Griebing seemed to enjoy themselves at Flambeau signing. 7 — Rick Hoffman took time from signing a yearbook to smile at our photographer. 8 — Jody Robinson and Allison Goettler couldn't seem to find any desks to sign on.

Graduation '83: a last good bye

The graduating class of 1983 had a very nice day for commencement exercises on the afternoon of June 9, at 1:30. Under nearly cloudless skies, the temperatures reached mid to upper 80's.

The class chose the white rose as its flower, and decorations in burgundy and pink fluttered under the bright skies on the day of the ceremony.

"We cannot live for yesterday or yesterday's dreams, but only for today and tomorrow's reality," was the seniors' class motto. Jeff Kowitz, class valedictorian, gave his address about going "110 per cent," which many of the students did to make their graduation the best!

1 — For a change of pace, Dan LaMaye and Kurt Vetter dressed in white tuxedos. 2 — Maria Karlsson, one of the AFS students, received her diploma with joy. 3 — Soft pastel colors looked nice as some of the graduates walked down the stairs. 4 — Seniors showed their spirit with a banner proclaiming their motto. 5 — When students received "this", they knew all the hard work paid off. 6 — Class President Peter Deubler was designated speaker at graduation. 7 — As in years past, the graduates ripped up their programs and then threw the confetti in the air.

Students say hello to responsibility

Some students said good bye to fun times and hello to responsibility. These are the students who had part time jobs. They had to say good bye to many after school and extracurricular activities, as well as spending time with friends. Though there were many sacrifices made, the reward came on pay day.

Some students saved their money for college or the purchase of a car. Others spent their earnings on clothes or for personal enjoyment.

1 — Jim Purchatzke worked on a car while another employee fixed a motorcycle at Schmidt Tire and Muffler. 2 — Ellen Dworak prepared an ice cream cone while she worked at the Dairy Queen. 3 — Scott Krueger was a cook at Hardee's. 4 — Cindy Barnard and Troy Reynolds worked in the drive thru at McDonalds. 5 — Jim Stanzel stacked the shelves at Shopko. 6 — Tom Mraz was an usher at the Strand Theatre. 7 — Jon Ihlenfeld made pizza's at the Pizza Hut. 8 — Tim Dobinski and Steve Wolff packed groceries at Copp's. 9 — Brenda Weiss and Gina LaBreck worked at the Eastwind restaurant.

Homecoming '83: The Rainbow's End'

Homecoming festivities began Friday night with the traditional pep rally, which attracted all the students and brought out their true school spirit.

Following the pep rally, the spirited students went to the bonfire which was moved to the area of Eck Industries this year.

Saturday morning started off with the traditional Homecoming parade. This year the junior float took first place with the theme of "We'll Whale On The Trojans." The game began at 1:30 and went into overtime. The Ships lost to Green Bay Southwest 21-18.

The Homecoming dance theme was "Rainbow's End". That turned out to be very appropriate for the weather conditions this year. Saturday morning started off with drizzle but by Saturday conditions improved.

The couples at the dance were entertained by the band "Wired". The dance was successful for both the student body and its Student Senate sponsors.

Let's see some style!

The clothing styles for 1983-84 were more varied than in past years. Each student had their own idea of style.

Boys still wore jeans and T-shirts, but they wore cords and sweaters occasionally. Girls wore baggie jeans again this year along with sweaters, oxfords, and turtlenecks. Polos such as Izod and Espirit were also very popular.

Lincoln girls enjoyed a few new fads such as wearing neckties, moccasins, bandannas, big earrings, scrub shirts, and cutoff sweatshirts.

Overall, Lincoln's styles were basically the same as in past years, but the styles were worn with more variety. The school had a look that really couldn't be described in terms of one certain fashion, but it showed our students really had style!

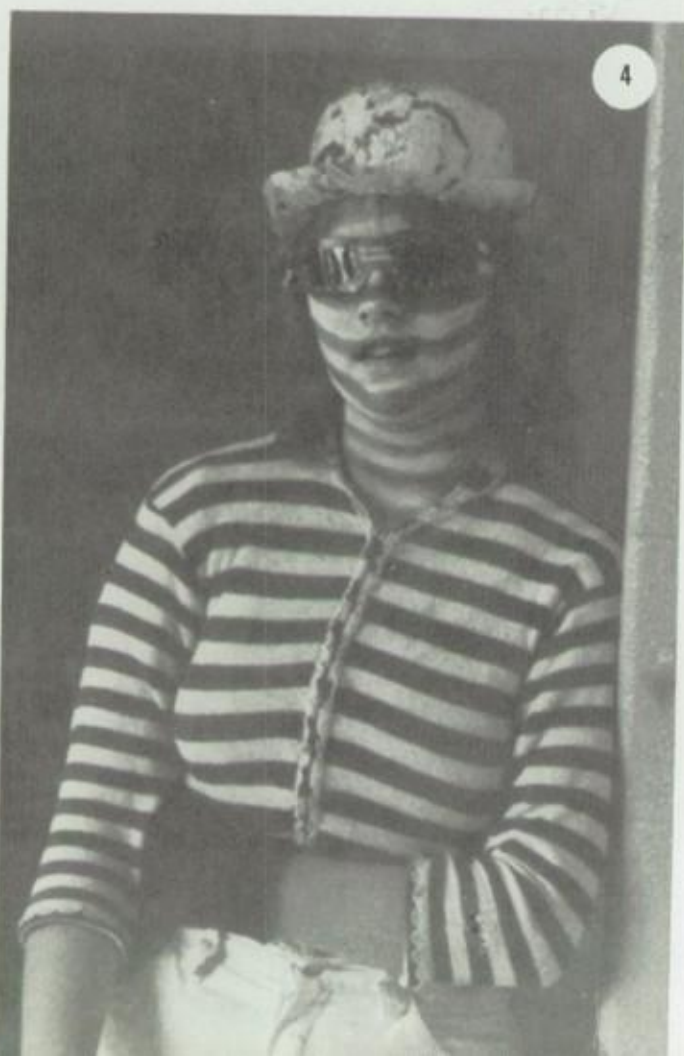

1 — Everywhere you looked . . . moccasins. 2 — Mary King and Shelli Rathsack wore the popular bandannas. 3 — The leather look came to Lincoln this year with many students. Shown here are Kay Ryan, Kris Fischer, Rachelle Rosado, and Lori Comstock. 4 — Girls at Lincoln showed they, too, had a masculine side. Shown are Bridget Holschbach, Marie Mankins, Kristin Emond, Brenda Weiss, Sara Weinert, Kim Thielen, Deanna Duckett, Lisa Swerdlow, and Cathy Hein. 5 — Chris Akgulian and Sue Kronschnabel showed the way they dressed to "take 'er easy". 6 — Neck ties and pin-striped baggies were shown by Marie Mankins. 7 — The casual look was modeled by Scott Berzinsky and Randy Herman.

Signs of spirit dominated spirit week

1984 Spirit Week was very successful. The week started with hat and tie day Monday, Tuesday was Hawaiian day, Wednesday was Western day, Thursday was Punk day and Friday was Red and White day.

With the theme of "Road Signs" the Seniors won floor competition. Sophomores came in second with a "Rock'n Roll" theme. Juniors finished third with a "Great America" theme.

1 — Amy Konop worked on a poster for the senior floor. 2 — Debbie Karman worked busily on a poster for the senior floor. 3 — Sherrie Engleman, Michelle Miron, Shealah Schneider, Amy Hein, Heather Schleis, and Amy Moumbow displayed the punk look. 4 — Karen Ducat seemed to enjoy dressing up for Red and White Day during spirit week. 5 — Bryan Greuel showed his school spirit on hat day. 6 — Tom Duffy and Tammy Heinrichs demonstrated the "punk" look. 7 — The sophomore class took second place in the floor competition. 8 — Seniors Mike French, Jon Elmore, and Mark Griebing showed spirit on Red and White Day. The senior floor was based on road signs.

TWIRP

'The way he makes me feel'

The TWIRP dance this year was held on the JFK Balcony on Saturday, Jan. 14th. Twirp is the traditional dance where the "girl asks the guy," and is required to pay for the whole evening.

This year, TWIRP Court was selected differently than in past years. The girls had to write applications based on scholastic achievement, extracurricular activities, and how much they had offered to the class of '84. No queen was chosen this year, but after the court was selected by Mr. Gary Hansen and Mr. Dennis VanLaningham, the girls chose their dates, and proceeded to the dance on Saturday night.

They enjoyed music performed by "The Untouchables" and had a fun time. Overall, the dance went very well, although the advisors wished more students would attend TWIRP in the future.

1 — Slow dancing was the main event of the evening. 2 — Everyone takes a break once in awhile. 3 — Bob Huebner and Cheri Wolf showed the emotion felt by many couples. 4 — Renee Rydzewski and Joe Hall were another happy couple at TWIRP.

Students made future plans

Students from Lincoln High School and schools from around this area participate annually in the Wisconsin Educational Youth Fair to help them decide what to do with their futures.

This year, Career Day was Friday, October 21. This is the day when representatives from colleges, universities, and military services came to Lincoln and talked to students who needed information about the career choices they had to make for the future. They helped students learn about the different educational facilities in Wisconsin and surrounding areas. The students then gained a more realistic view of what lay ahead of them after their years of high school.

1 — Manitowoc area students talked with military personnel. 2 — Bob Bricco discussed a possible future in the military services. 3 — Adam Miller decided to get more information on the Wisconsin Conservatory of Music. 4 — Karen Lovelien might end up going to UW-Eau Claire, as here she filled out a form to get more information. 5 — Kris Kohlmann, Lana Schneider, and Faye Grotegut filled out information cards.

Lincoln said good bye to a year of change

A big change will take place at LHS next school year. Principal William Malinsky announced his retirement after 27 years of service to the school district. He first came here as assistant principal in 1957 and moved up to the top job in 1966.

After retirement, Mr. Malinsky planned to tour the southwest and possibly to move there in the future.

Sport highlights of the year

Yugoslavia was the site of the 1984 Winter Olympics. The U.S. won both the gold and silver medals in the downhill skiing competition. Christian Cooper, the winner of the silver medal, was only .4 of a second behind Debbie Armstrong, the winner of the gold medal. It was the first gold medal the U.S. ever won in downhill skiing.

The brother and sister pair of Kitty and Peter Carruthers won the silver medal for the U.S. in figure skating. One of the disappointments for the U.S. was in our hockey team. They didn't win any medals after surprisingly winning the gold medal four years ago when the Olympics were held in the United States.

In football action, the Los Angeles Raiders defeated the Washington Redskins 38-9 in the Super Bowl. The game was played Jan. 22, in Tampa.

Due to the past problems at the Lincolnite (also known as Ma's) the board of education bought the property and had the building burned. The burning took place Nov. 18, 1983. The Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds said destroying the building was necessary because it was unsafe.

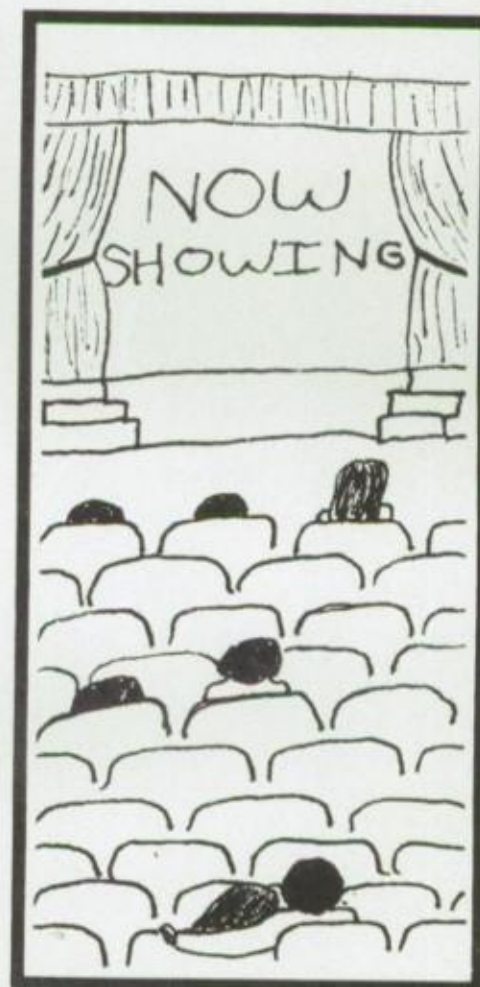

Many students were upset by the burning of "Ma's". They complained there was nowhere else to go during their hours off, before and after school. The lot where "Ma's" was may be turned into a park with trees, benches and tables.

After several years of planning, and hard work, the Industrial Arts Building was finally completed. The new classes started in the 1983-84 school year.

Cabbage Patch dolls created new craze

Cabbage Patch Dolls were a big craze this year. People went to great extremes to get them. Store owners were threatened, bones broken, and a lady even lost her baby, in a rush to get a doll first. But the kids lucky enough to get one were very happy. The price for these dolls ranged from $25.00 and up.

1983's top movies

1. "Risky Business"
2. "Trading Places"
3. "Flashdance"
4. "Return of the Jedi"
5. "Staying Alive"
6. "Vacation"
7. "Mr. Mom"

LHS presented 'Fantasticks'

This year the musical, usually done in spring, was switched to a fall performance.

"The Fantasticks" was a romantic tale about two fathers who wanted their children to marry each other. Being impatient, they decided to help love along. The fathers hired a villianous bandit to kidnap Louisa, the daughter. The abduction ended in an exciting sword fight.

The plan meant to drive the children together backfired, and Louisa fell in love with the bandit.

Romance eventually drew the lovers back together giving the play a happy ending.

1 — Brad Fanta, who played Matt, and Katrina VanDreel, who played Luisa, practiced their lines at a rehearsal. 2 — Brad Fanta and Katrina VanDreel concentrated on the blocking of a scene in "Fantasticks." 3 — Choreographer Sandy Sporleder helped Adam Miller, who played El Gallo, with his role. 4 — Perry Smith practiced his lines.

'The Lion, The Witch, and the Wardrobe'

Lincoln's mid-winter play was a children's play called "The Lion, The Witch, and The Wardrobe."

This was a fairy tale about four children who found a fantasy world through the back of a wardrobe. This world, called Narnia, was under the rule of a wicked white witch who made it always winter but never Christmas.

The coming of the children fulfilled a prophecy and the children, helped by mythological creatures and a lion king, battled the witch for Narnia's freedom.

Good triumphed over evil and the white witch was destroyed freeing Narnia to live happily ever after.

Exchange students said good bye

Being a foreign exchange student means many things. First, you must be able to adapt to different life styles. Food and clothing styles are just the beginning of the changes one must endure. Another difficulty is language. Many American slang expressions do not directly translate into other language. Therefore, the transition to the American life style can sometimes be difficult.

Hi Everyone,

I would like to thank all the students here at LHS, for all the good times I had here. I would also like to thank the teachers for their kindness towards me, like when I didn't do my homework.

I think that this has been a great experience for me. I have learned a lot about America and how the Americans live. I would like to thank my host family for their kindness, so that it was possible for this to happen.

Bjarni Magnussen

Dear Friends,

I can't believe how much fun I've had here! It's now time to say goodbye and I hate it!

In the beginning I was amazed at how different everything was. I think I was different also, but I think I changed. I made very good friends almost right away.

I want to thank everyone in Manitowoc and especially those at Lincoln for their friendliness and hospitality that has made my year here so perfect. Everywhere I went people wanted me to tell them about Sweden. They really wanted to know! I'm not so sure people would have done that in Sweden.

Also, a special thanks to my host family, Randy and Roxanne Boris, who helped me and took me in as their own daughter. They are great!

So, it's time to say goodbye . . . no one named, no one forgotten!

Kath Carlsson

Friends at L.H.S.,

I have already spent about five months here. I couldn't believe the time went so quickly. I've had many nice experiences that I would never forget in my life.

When I came here, I felt awkward especially in school, because I couldn't speak English fluently. Besides, L.H.S. is a big school and it was confusing to find my classrooms.

Now, it is getting better. I really enjoyed my time as an AFS student. I enjoyed the AFS weekend and picnic. I liked this school. We could choose our courses ourselves. The teachers were helpful and the students were nice. They helped me learn English and I had a lot of fun with them.

Awar

Hi People,

I imagine that many of you don't know how I got to come to the United States as a private student, but after many months of planning I could come and live in Manitowoc for a year.

I've been enjoying the beauty of this area, especially during the fall, when all the leaves turn yellow and fall off the trees, and the snow. We don't have snow in Brazil, therefore we don't have the fall either.

I'm very thankful to the administration of Lincoln High. They provided documents for me so that I could spend the year here at Lincoln. I learned a lot here and made good friends. I enjoyed the many activities the school has offered.

I don't know how to say thank you to my host family. I'm sure I couldn't have had a better family to live with. Van Dreels, I love you.

Thanks to all who helped this year be the most unforgettable year of my life.

Paula

Dear Students of L.H.S.,

I have been here in Manitowoc for five months now, and I think it's time to say a few things.

First, I'm happy that I ended up with a great host family. They really made me feel safe and as a part of their family.

Second, Lincoln High School has been an experience. Mostly good, with friends, nice teachers, and fun in classes. But at times it was a little hard, especially in the beginning where it seemed that the American students were as afraid of me as I was of them.

I want to thank my friends and my teachers here at Lincoln High for making this year outstanding in every way. Trust me, I'll be back!!!

After a day at LHS we . . .

Just what do LHS students do when they're out of classes? Some students helped others by volunteering as candy strippers while others worked on church projects or in religious groups.

Many students shopped at the malls in town or ate at their favorite restaurants. Some passed time by playing home video games or going to arcades. Sporting activities were offered by the Recreation Department and the YMCA. Students also participated in individual sports such as hunting, fishing, swimming, skiing, and tobogganing. LHS students always found plenty to do.

Here Greg Pankratz surveyed the slope at Silver Creek. 3 . . . played video games at home as well as in arcades. Here, Sue Sweetman watched as Mark Radl played a game. 4 . . . worked off excess energy in the weight room. Laura Taylor showed us her technique. 5 . . . went shopping. Bill Anhalt, Chris Akgulian, and Tim Mattson paused at the merry-go-round as they shopped at the Mid-Cities Mall.

Leadership was shown by LHS Clubs

Rotary Club was a group of students chosen on the basis of leadership and academic excellence by the faculty. Sponsored by the Rotary Club of Manitowoc, two members dined every Thursday with the adult Rotary group.

Student Senate was a group of students who helped represent our student body. Meeting every Tuesday in the fifth floor Tower room, they planned homecoming events and an airband contest.

This year's officers included David Plant, president; Paul Hanstedt, vice president; Jeff Windus, secretary; and Bridget Meidl, treasurer.

1 — Vice President Paul Hanstedt and Secretary Jeff Windus prepared for their Student Senate Meeting. 2 — Kristi Holm, Carla Vogt, and Bridget Meidl listened to a presentation by assistant superintendent Howard Willsman.

The main objective of the AFS Club was to promote understanding, knowledge, and friendship among students. Membership was open to all students interested in meeting new people.

Activities planned by the AFS clubs were an overnight at the school forest, a potluck supper, an AFS dance, a hayride with other area AFS clubs, a Great America trip, and selling candy at the concession stand during a basketball game.

This year's officers included Angelique Montag, president; Rick Herman, vice president; and Sheila Mir, secretary-treasurer.

Something new at Lincoln this year was the Peer Counseling group. Advised by Mrs. Cheryl Matthias, they met once a week during 7th hour, in her office. They discussed problems they had at school, at work, and at home.

Clubs took leadership in spirit

Pep Club was an organization that helped bring out the school spirit in everyone. They sponsored fan buses to give the boys' basketball team support at away games, organized Red and White Day, helped decorate halls, and sponsored dances after some of the games. They were also involved in other activities such as the selling of the Manty buttons and the making of spirit posters to support LHS teams. Pep Club did a lot to add to the spirit found at LHS.

M-Club was a group made up of LHS letter winners. Throughout the year they organized the concession stand and coat check at home games. They also sponsored dances and bake sales.

Special duties of the M-Club included escorting the Homecoming court at the Homecoming Game and serving as ushers at graduation.

This year French Club consisted of 40 members under the leadership of President Staci Meister, and Secretary-Treasurer Phil Maples.

The club was involved in many activities this year. The members attended an overnight at the school forest and a bike-hike in October. During the winter months they sponsored a ski trip and they shopped and ate in Milwaukee. Finally, in May, they visited Great America.

Math, science clubs generated lots of interest

Science club was for students interested in areas of science that were not covered in the classroom. The group took many trips. For example, on October 17th, they went to the Rahr West School Forest Observatory. Several members were instructed in the use and care of the observatory and its telescope. Various constellations and planets were noted.

Math club provided competitive activities for about forty two members. In math competition they took 6th place at Whitewater, 2nd place at Oshkosh North, 3rd place at Kaukauna, 1st place at Manitowoc, and 2nd place in the league. Dave Plank, Erik Salverson, and Kathy Stangel earned medals in competition.

Drill team entertained at games

Karen Lovelien and Kellie Bingman practiced routines.

Drill Team helped build school spirit by performing at the half-time of both football and basketball games this year.

Last summer they attended a pom pon camp in which they received the spirit stick under the leadership of Patti Osieczanek and Staci Meister as captains.

Janel Holly, Kristin Emond, Laurie Zipperer, Cheryl Harpt, Laurie Wilson, Jody Troupe, Karen Lovelien, and Kellie Bingman practiced their chorus line for a performance.

Theatre Club enjoyed a productive year of performances. Club members, however, did much more than acting or performing. They also ushered, sold tickets, assembled costumes, handled publicity, and took care of props and makeup for all the Lincoln plays and musicals.

Stage Crew provided the technical assistance that was needed for all the Lincoln stage productions. They designed and constructed sets, operated lighting and sound equipment, and did all the other stage work that had to be done. They did this for outside groups using the LHS Stage as well as for Lincoln productions.

Collegiate Chamber Choir was formerly called Advanced Chorus. It was directed by James Miller and it consisted of 58 juniors and seniors. This chorus was the most advanced chorus at Lincoln. At the end of the year they took a road trip to different colleges around the state.

Campus Prep Choir used to be known as Mixed Chorus. This group which was under the direction of James Miller was primarily made up of sophomores but there were some juniors and seniors too. This group rehearsed every day. This year they participated in four public concerts.

Lincoln bands played for Packer-Browns game

The Lincoln bands had a successful year of playing at Packer and Ships football games and parades.

The Marching Band played at Milwaukee County Stadium on Nov. 6 for the NFL game between the Green Bay Packers and the Cleveland Browns. The 2 ½ months of practicing and planning that led up to the Packer game paid off in a quality performance.

Symphonic Band planned to travel this summer to Rapid City, South Dakota, and then to Estes Park, Colorado. The band and orchestra parents sold boxes of fruit during November to raise money for the trip. Drum majors were Mike Arndt and Perry Pankratz. Rae Anne VanElls, of the class of '82 was the colorguard instructor for this year.

Our Turn

After many years of learning, our time has finally come to say goodbye.

We have accumulated much information from our educational resources.

Now is the time to put our knowledge to work, building a continuing future. For we are the next generation, the generation that will take on the tasks which were left for us by our predecessors.

We will be forever stepping one step ahead of the future, to insure a productive future.

Faculty

Administration

The Lincoln High School Administration was responsible for helping the school year along. They organized classes in the Industrial Arts Department because of the new addition. They also helped extracurricular activities and the graduation ceremony.

The Board of Education gained a new board member, David Gratz. They helped out the school by making sure the school system ran smoothly.

Mr. Zoch thought about the day's problems.

Mr. Malinsky looked up from reading a letter.

Mr. LaLeike paused during his work.

The Art Department came up with many new ideas this year. One product was in the basic drawing and design class where students designed and made vehicles which would be used in the future. Their advanced open studio was in operation for the second year, and they were involved in making logos for the City of Manitowoc and for Youth Art Month which was in March.

The Art Department had two student teachers, Ms. Barbara Bunde and Ms. Monica Jensen.

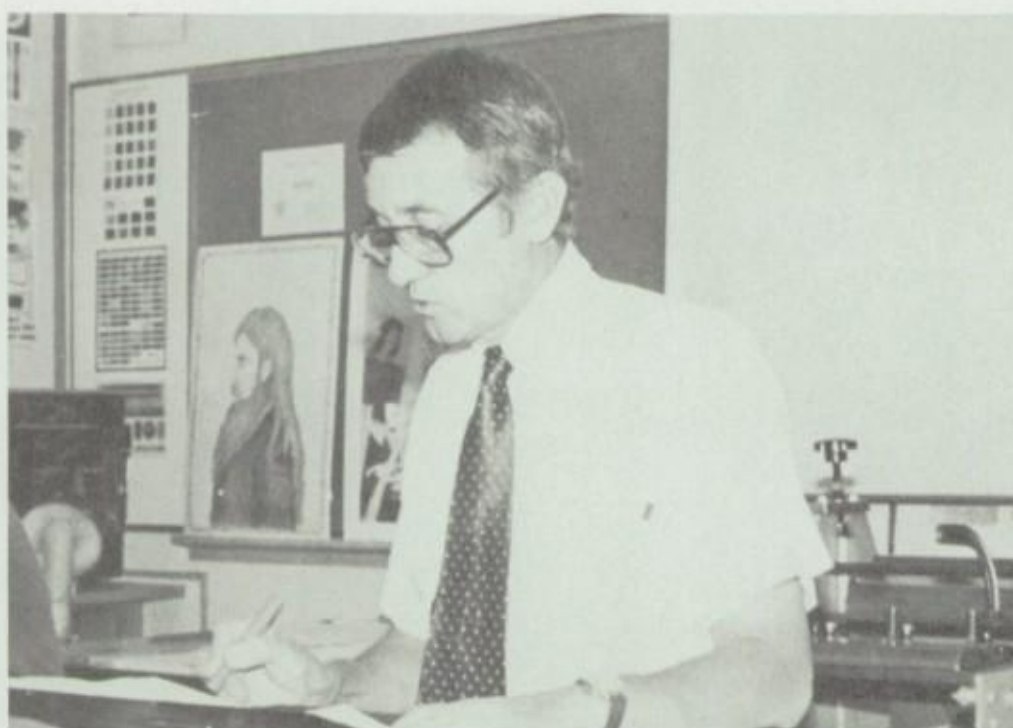

Ron Stokes sat with two of his former teachers.

Russell Larson paged through a book.

Kathleen Mand showed a student some information.

This year there were few changes in the Business Education Department except for the addition of some new word processing equipment. They trained two student teachers, Ms. Mary Voorhees and Mr. Fred Fox, who taught under Mrs. Darlene Wotachek.

Business education courses gave students a head start towards careers in the business world. The courses included accounting, marketing, and typing.

The Foreign Language department offered three languages: Spanish, French, and German. The students experienced different cultures, traditions, and food, through their courses.

They had an ethnic food day in March. For Christmas, the classes had food contests and they decorated the rooms and halls. They studied very hard to learn more about the different cultures but had fun doing it. This summer there will be about seven students going on a trip to Mexico.

Guidance

The Guidance Department played an important role in the lives of many students. The five counselors were busy with many activities such as helping with financial aid, SAT tests, and scholarships.

Programs on domestic violence and career enlightenment also kept them busy.

Mr. Carlson took a rest after a busy day.

The Home Economics Department taught students to do things on their own and not to have to depend on other people to sew their clothes and cook their meals.

There were many different levels of sewing ranging from Clothing

A creative cake was made by Stacy Koch, Barb Moss, and Amy Neff in their 7th hour foods class.

Industrial Arts

The biggest advancement in the Industrial Arts Department was the new building which was added onto the school before the 83-84 school year. They also offered two new classes: the new enterprise system which taught students how to get a job and keep it, and the home maintenance and repair class which taught the student how to run a household.

Thanks to the janitorial staff, the building was kept neat and tidy and all of the furniture and equipment was kept in working order. Janitors were helping the girl who left her purse in a locked room or the guy who left his books in the locker room.

Consequently, Lincoln's clean up crew was appreciated by students . . . not just for our well-kept building, but for those "little extras" they did for us.

I remember how badly I wished you were mine that night I had met you.
 But I never realized it would turn out this way.
 At first we seemed to have the perfect relationship!
 I loved you, you trusted me.
 What happened?
 I'll tell you what happened — one of us started to lose the love — and it wasn't me.
 It hurts!! And the hurting just can't seem to stop.
 Can you help me stop hurting?
 No, because you took all the hurting out of you and put it into me.
 You say you love me, you're sorry, and you won't do it again
 I can't trust you!
 My trust is gone
 Your love is gone
 Do we have the courage to try and make our relationship last or isn't it worth it?
 You keep hurting me and I still stay right by your side.
 My friends say I'm crazy.
 But I just think I'm crazy in love.
 My hurt hides away in my heart and my feelings hide in the back of my mind until I need them.
 Then it's too much hurt at one time.
 Right now it's heart versus hurt, and hurt always wins.
 My love is all that I have left for you — no trust — is that enough?
 You see I fell in love with you at first sight — that was wrong.
 Like a friend once said, "Don't fall in love right away, give it a little time — because it won't last if you don't let love come itself."
 But I'll tell you one thing Babe, the love keeps growing and always will.
 Even if yours doesn't!
 I love you, Tim!!!
 Tracy

Jeff . . . to you

I'm not an obstruction hindering the process of your career, nor am I a blockade preventing you from succeeding. I'm not a barrier confining your abilities, nor am I a roadblock, detouring your chosen path. I am not a thing, I am young, free, and alive. I am human just like you, and should be treated that way.
 Not the sun above you,
 not the ground below you.
 Not an opponent, but a friend to encourage you, not your instructor to teach you, nor am I the maid to pick up after you.
 I am someone to comfort you, to confide in you, inspire
 you, and to believe in you.
 I can be anything you want me to be.
 I can hurt and be hurt, I can love and be loved.
 And I can be gentle or strong.
 I am not to be pitied nor taken for granted, and I don't want to be used.
 I want to be wanted, to share your success and feelings, your failures, your joys, and your sorrows.
 Your ups and your downs.
 But you have to go half way.
 You have to feel too.
 But you are seeing me differently.
 You look at me and see someone who will hold you back.
 It's really not that way.
 I love you.
 I can't make a relationship work all by myself.
 You have to try to make any relationship work.
 You have to meet me half way for us to work.
 I need you, my feelings for you will never change.

Love,
 T.J.R., C.G.

IF YOU ONLY KNEW

If you only knew, how much I liked you.
I thought we were made for each other.
But I suppose that I was wrong.
If only my thoughts would come true.
I tried to forget you; It was hard.
Then I realized that I didn't like you.
I loved you!
I never knew the meaning of love.
I found out the hard way.
If you only knew, how much I loved you.
We've had good times
together,
They had come, now
gone.
Flowing with the wind,
The love I once knew is gone forever.
If you only knew.

Bridgette

Forever

Dedicated to Eddie:

The first day we had met,
I knew I'd love you yet,
It was tough at the start,
But now I know we won't depart.

From the hard times we have shared
Are the times that show we cared.
From this I can see,
That it will always be,
You and me,
In love.

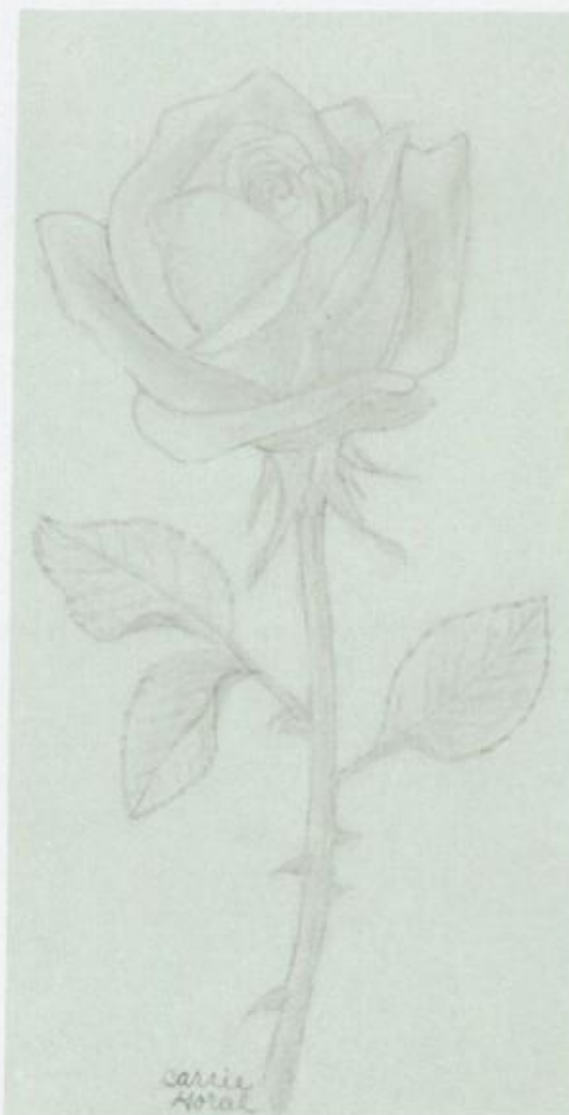

For all the things we did together,
I know we will last forever and ever.
We are always happy, not sad,
We are always laughing, not mad.
Together we will be forever and ever.

Love,
Brenda

Dedicated to Eddie:

I love you, darling, with all my heart,
I know now that we will never part.
Just because you're miles away,
The love between us will always stay.
When you come back and we are together,
I will hug and kiss you more than ever.
Our love will last and last,
Remembering the good times in the past.
I am waiting for the day,
That you will come and say,
"Sweetheart, will you marry me?"
Of course, my answer will be- si!

Amor, Brenda
(IL + BB) Para Siempre Jamas

Wedding Day

Dedicated to Scott:

Me in my dress,
And you in your vest.
Both are white,
and dynamite.
Our hands together holding tight,
everything will be just right.
No more worries, or fears, or doubts,
there's nothing more to think about.
We'll be together forever at last,
just you and me remembering the past.
Our wedding day will be so nice,
our relatives all throwing rice.
Don't forget the honeymoon,
that always ends way to soon.
Our anniversaries all pass by,
Forever at last, you and I.

Love,
Karen

Loneliness

Lonely days she's all alone,
No one around to call her own.
Lonely nights with no one to hold,
Feelings inside so empty and cold.
In her dreams she sees him there,
Comforting her in all his care.
But then her vision disappears,
And all her loneliness again appears.

We

We walk the shore
Hand in hand
The wind blows
The clear white sand.
We talk so soft
Whispers fill the sky
Our words so sincere
And without a lie.
We see the sunset
The stars come out
We touch so gently
Without a doubt.
The moon so bright
It hardly seems real
With the love we feel.
We talk the future
We talk the past
We share our thoughts
With shadows we cast.
We write in the sand
It washes away
We write it again
For some special day.
We run in the water
Wet to our knees
We kiss so lightly
In the breeze.
We say good-bye
One more time
Hoping and wishing
I see you again.

Debbe

Say Good-Bye

Looking back on things we've never Had
Thinking About it, It's really kind of sad
Sometimes Wishing we could start All Over Again
But where is the Future in looking to the End
In the time we share and time we spend
If your Heart was Broken will it ever mend
With Nothing to do and to say
When tomorrow comes what of today
If things we Regret make us cry
Then what we regret most Is learning to Say Good-Bye.

David Hawpetoss

My Eyes

You brought me sunshine
And bright blue skies
And even rainbows
In my eyes.

You sang me love songs
And lullabies
You hung onto me
In my cries.

You gave me gifts
That measured in size
You gave me love
And your goodbyes.

Debbe

My eyes have seen
sadness in your eyes
My eyes have seen
tears of joy
My eyes have seen
violence and hatred
My eyes have seen
peace and friendship
My eyes have seen
pain and disappointment
My eyes have seen
pride and pleasure
My eyes have seen
hidden hopes
My eyes have seen
dreams come true
My eyes have seen

When The Snow Falls

There were two people who knew each other, and one day just before Christmas they walked downtown.

It was the coldest day in history and as snow fell, shoppers hurriedly tried to finish their last-minute shopping amidst the bitter cold.

He stopped for a moment to look at a display inside a store window.

It was really brilliant, bright lights and colors reflected on their faces.

She looked at him for a moment and he appeared so innocent, child-like, she thought.

He turned to her and she seemed very far away, saddened by something.

They faced each other as snowflakes fell about them, and he said,

"Please don't be sad. It's Christmas, and we have each other."

She reached out for him, and just as they hugged, everything suddenly became still.

The car horns and engines vanished.

The coldness turned to warmth.

And the only thing that could be heard was the snow falling around them.

And wonder why,

Why don't you see me?

Why do you look through me?

It's not possible because you don't know me,

And I'm too shy to talk to you!

Failure To See The Signs

It was a night I would long remember. I did not know what was going wrong or what made me do the things I did. It was all very strange. I never stopped to think, but instead I just kept going deeper into a fir wilderness: deeper into trouble.

The day I woke up, I thought I would have lost a few fingers and toes. In general though, I was warm and safe.

My "bed-partner", a few feet away, suffered a gunshot wound. He looked unaware — unknowing. I wondered how long I had been there looking like he did . . . I wondered if I had had as many tubes and wires monitoring or sustaining my body's functions.

After I surveyed my cubicle, I noticed I was warm — a very comforting sensation. Then bad memories arose as hunger struck. I was sure the doctor would be ecstatic when I told him. For now I could get some more sleep, or so I hoped: sleep never came.

The light above my bed collaborating with my eyes revealed all twenty of my farthest extremities in perfect working order. It seemed miraculous at the time that medical science could have progressed so far in the few short years I had lived in the Northwest Territory.

Thoughts came from everywhere as I lay with nothing to do. I thought of all those hunting trips up here with dad and his buddies. I remembered coming back from the war and moving up here, much against the plans everyone had made for me. I thought about the irony of the whole sit-com. In action they taught me to kill to survive. How to kill I could remember but when I needed the survival part, it was lost. How to survive . . .

By that time it was morning. A shrink came in and interrupted my train of thought. He pulled the "word game" act on me as if I were a candidate for a rubber room. I tried to ask him sensible questions but he was unstimulated. He repeated his queries:

"Do you know who you are?"

"Do you know why you are here?"

"Tell me what happened."

Now that last one received my undivided attention. I did not know what happened and I told him so. He suggested I start at the beginning and just keep talking. I figured that fool was going to clutter my space until I gave him some input. I thought it a good way to pass the time.

I had left the chalet with my 30-06, a backpack of goodies, and the wind at my back. I had purchased my big game license the day before, and was going to venture out and bag a trophy as well as a freezer full of moose steaks.

I had set afield at daybreak and it was two hours until I found a track. I lost and found it many times before I lost it for good. Suddenly, I focused the picture and pose of a lifetime, unspooked, one hundred twenty yards up the ravine. I took aim and fired twice. I knew it had dropped but when I came to the spot where I thought it would be, it was gone! I explained that this happens often: the animal falls because it is stunned, not because it is hurt, then it takes off or stays low in the thick underbrush.

I came to the quick conclusion that it was hit in the left rear leg and it would not get too far. I followed the trail of blood to a spot where the animal must have stumbled and fallen, then, found it hard to get back up. I was ashamed I had not produced a quick, clean, humane kill.

The psychiatrist glanced at his watch and told me he would be back tomorrow to hear the finish of the tale. That afternoon Wild Bill and I, that is, my roommate and I, watched some suggestive "lazy wife's shows" that made the both of us sleepy. I asked him if he wanted to talk. He nodded. I switched off the T.V. I began to tell of my days in the war, why I moved up here, and how good the hunting was. His nods and shakes showed interest.

That night I had the best booyah I ever tasted. Those hospital cooks really knew how to treat a man well. Later, I played cribbage with the man to whom I owe my life, the man in the search party that found me. Not one word he uttered even slightly hinted to the incident. He merely acted as if we were old friends. I was glad to have some company besides Bullet Bill with whom to talk. I kept wondering when mom and dad were going to walk into the room but I later learned that they had never been notified.

The next morning I ate breakfast, swallowed some pills, and waited for the psychiatrist to return. When he did come I started where I had left off.

I figured that if the animal fell down it was because the muscle I hit was beginning to throb so badly he could no longer stand it, so he stumbled. Or it was the fact he had lost so much blood that it was making him weak? The trail of red-blotched snow continued in a strange direction: uphill. Clouds were coming up lazily and snow would begin to fall in a few hours — I had to hurry. I trudged sixty yards from where I thought the animal had stumbled, up a quite dense coniferous landscape, and was very tired when I found my trophy. He was still breathing, so I did the most humane thing I could think of doing: finish him off.

When I pulled out my knife to field dress, I also took off my gloves. I noticed the wind was picking up.

After my prize was gutted out, I considered the lunch I had brought along or a cup of hot chocolate, but I decided I needed all the time I had to drag the moose back to the chalet. I had only three hours. I brought along a hookup I had made for an occasion such as this. It would make it much easier to move the carcass.

The wind was really whistling through the treetops. The snow on the ground was drifting and new snow was falling. Visibility was getting lower but I knew where I was going. It would have been worse had the wind been blowing in my face. Even with my hookup, dragging that moose constantly up an incline was not easy. I was starting to get cold, especially in my fingertips and toes. I kept wanting to be home — warm and in bed. I decided I would leave the carcass outside when I got home instead of hanging it in the shed, the cold temperature would keep it from tainting.

My stomach kept wanting what was in my backpack but I knew that even if I kept going I would be home after dark. I had no time to stop and lunch. I was cold and I was tired. I wanted to be home in bed.

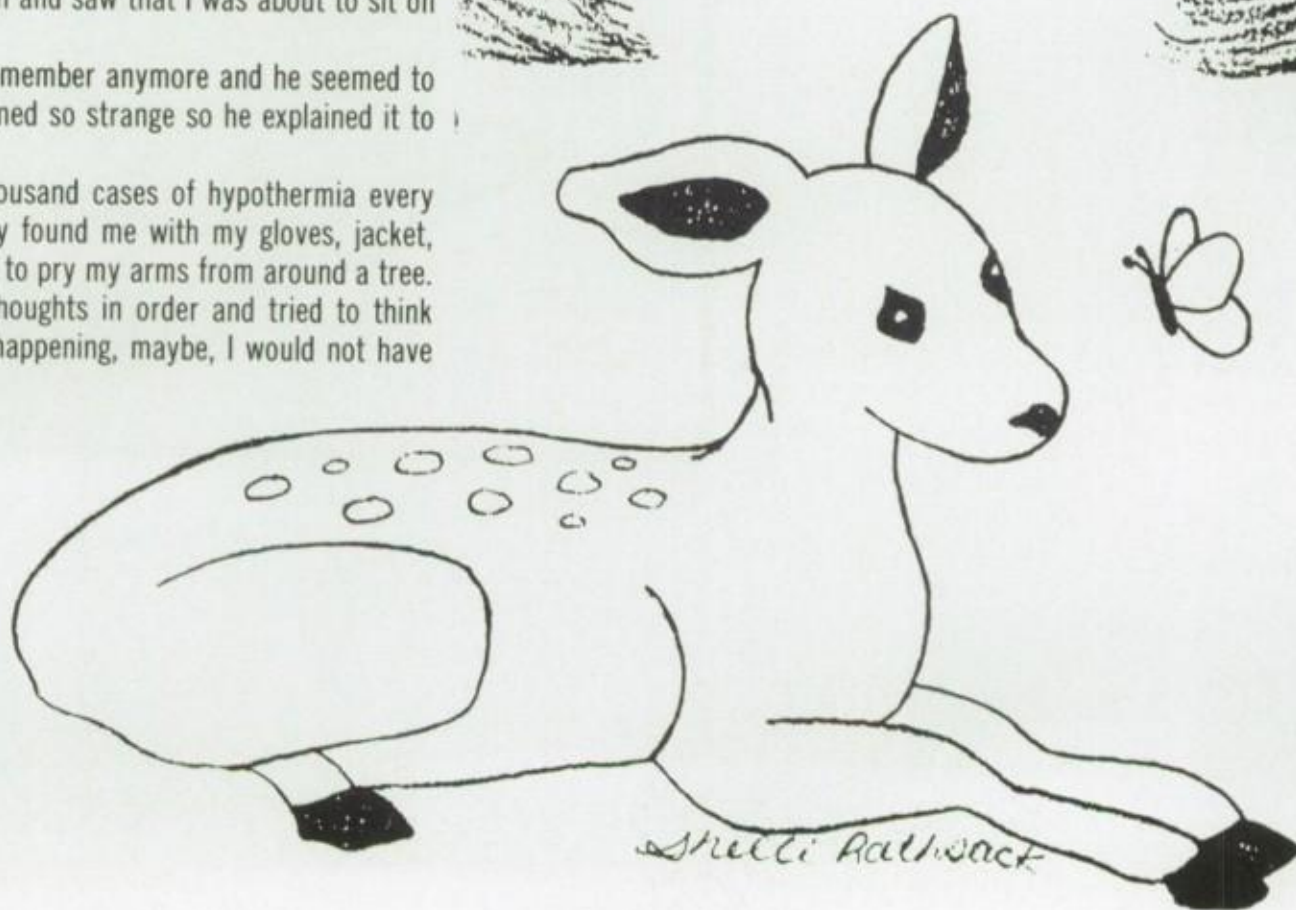

Then I saw it — my "A" frame refuge. I did not see what difference it would make if I left the carcass where it was or if I dragged it to my doorstep, so I left it. I began walking up the knoll that was before me. Knoll? What knoll? There were no little knolls where I was located. When I reached the top and looked around there were no buildings of any type to be seen. I walked on still looking for whatever it was I thought I saw.

I spotted some snowmobilers so I stopped them and asked them where I was. They told me I was near a place called "Honolulu". They offered me a ride, I accepted. I remember shivering furiously at this point, and also being all closed in and wanting to run away. As I sat down on the back of one of the snowmobiles, I looked down and saw that I was about to sit on a dead, fallen log.

I told him I could not remember anymore and he seemed to understand why. It all seemed so strange so he explained it to me.

There are some two thousand cases of hypothermia every year in Canada alone. They found me with my gloves, jacket, and boots off and they had to pry my arms from around a tree. If I would have kept my thoughts in order and tried to think critically about what was happening, maybe, I would not have suffered the fate I did.

Love Hurts

They say he's the guy
The right one for me
But why do I cry?
He can't be for me.

You're the one
The one I love
the only one
I'll ever love.

But now you're gone
the memories remain
All of them bringing me
Nothing but pain

Why you left
I really don't know
What did I do?
Why did you go?

You didn't call
Not even a letter
Maybe it was all
All for the better.

JLF

As the years go by,
time has changed.
I think I've found
the one I love.

My lover is gone,
But he will be back soon,
He misses me so,
He can't stay away.

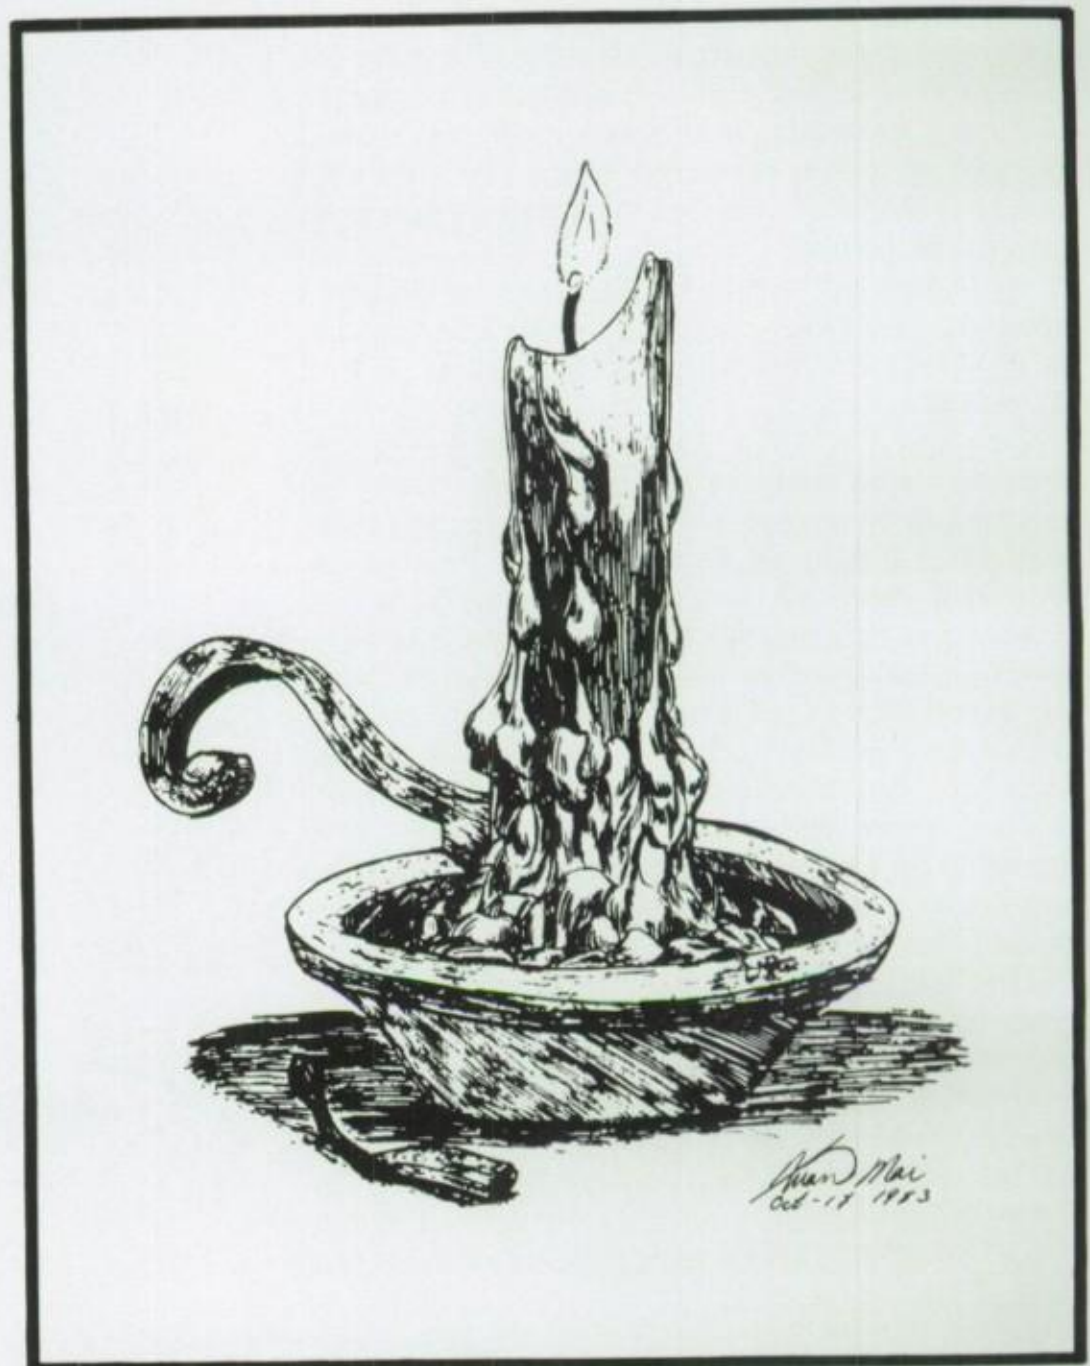

He's back for me,
He said he won't
leave ever again,
We are together again.

Mary Novak

To . . .

To care, to share,
To kiss, to hug,
To honesty, to trust,
To talk, to smile,
To cry, to laugh,
To argue, to make-up,
is to LOVE.

Brenda

Loving

With you in my arms,
Giving me all your charm.
I feel so secure
When you are near.
For love is with us,
There is no fuss.
Because you and me make a perfect pair,
We both know how to love, care, and share.

Brenda

My Love

In the beginning
When your eyes met mine
life had a meaning; as true as time.
Days were filled with memories to keep love felt so fragile
I had to weep.
With the touch of your hand or the sound in your voice gave me no reason to make it a choice.
I wanted to love you
so desperate to care
I hoped that you
Would always be there.
You needed me
as I needed you,
My lifetime fantasy
has finally come true!

Mary Novak

When you've loved someone
But now he's gone
When you feel regrets
But the damage is done.
Sometimes
Forgive and forget
doesn't work out
For he can't forgive
And he can't forget.
You won't end up enemies
You won't end up friends
You'll just die off
As both hearts mend.
Both hearts will care
After what you've been through
For you loved each other
As you both knew.

Friends

Friends are people who stand by you through thick and thin.
Friends are there whether you lose or win.

Friends are people that you can talk to.
Friends are there when no one else will do.

Friends are people you call on the phone.
Friends are there so you're never alone.

Friends are people who care when things go wrong.
Friends are there when you need someone strong.

Friends are people who do good deeds.
Friends are something everyone needs.

Today . . . Tomorrow

Today, we are friends
Today, we talk to each other
Today, we tease each other
Today, we joke and laugh together
Today, I really like you
Tomorrow, I'll still like you
Tomorrow, we won't see each other as often
Tomorrow, will we still talk?
Tomorrow, will we still get along?
Tomorrow, will we still be friends?

Brothers

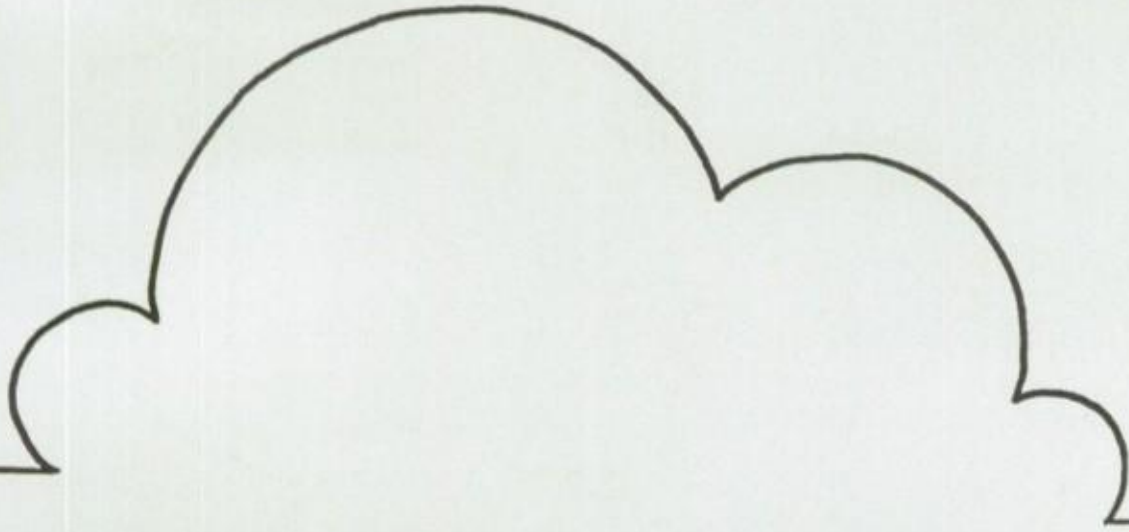

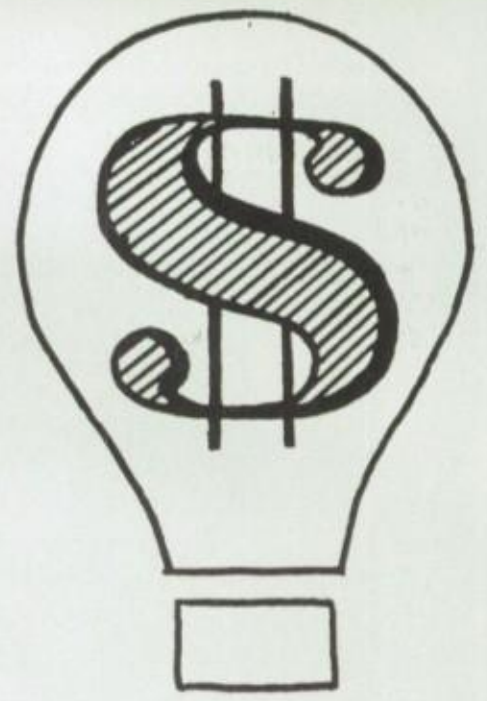

Brothers are special in everyone's lives.
They're often better than husbands or wives.
Who else besides your parents do you know
Shared your life and watched you grow.
They're there to comfort and hold you close
On times you feel you need it most.
Sometimes they like to get mean and rough
And show off that they're really tough.
You have to forget it and let it go
'Cause deep down inside you really know
How much you love that brother so.
So enjoy them while they're still here
'Cause someday soon they might disappear.

Ann Miller

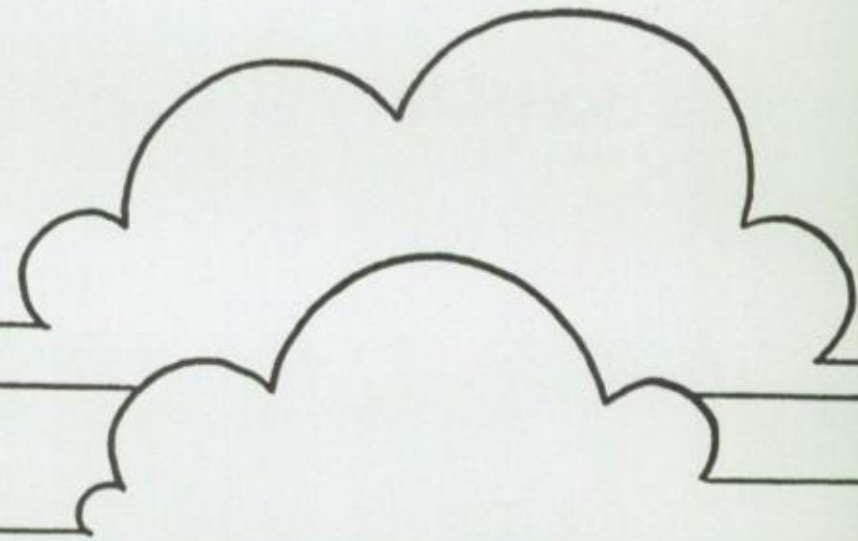

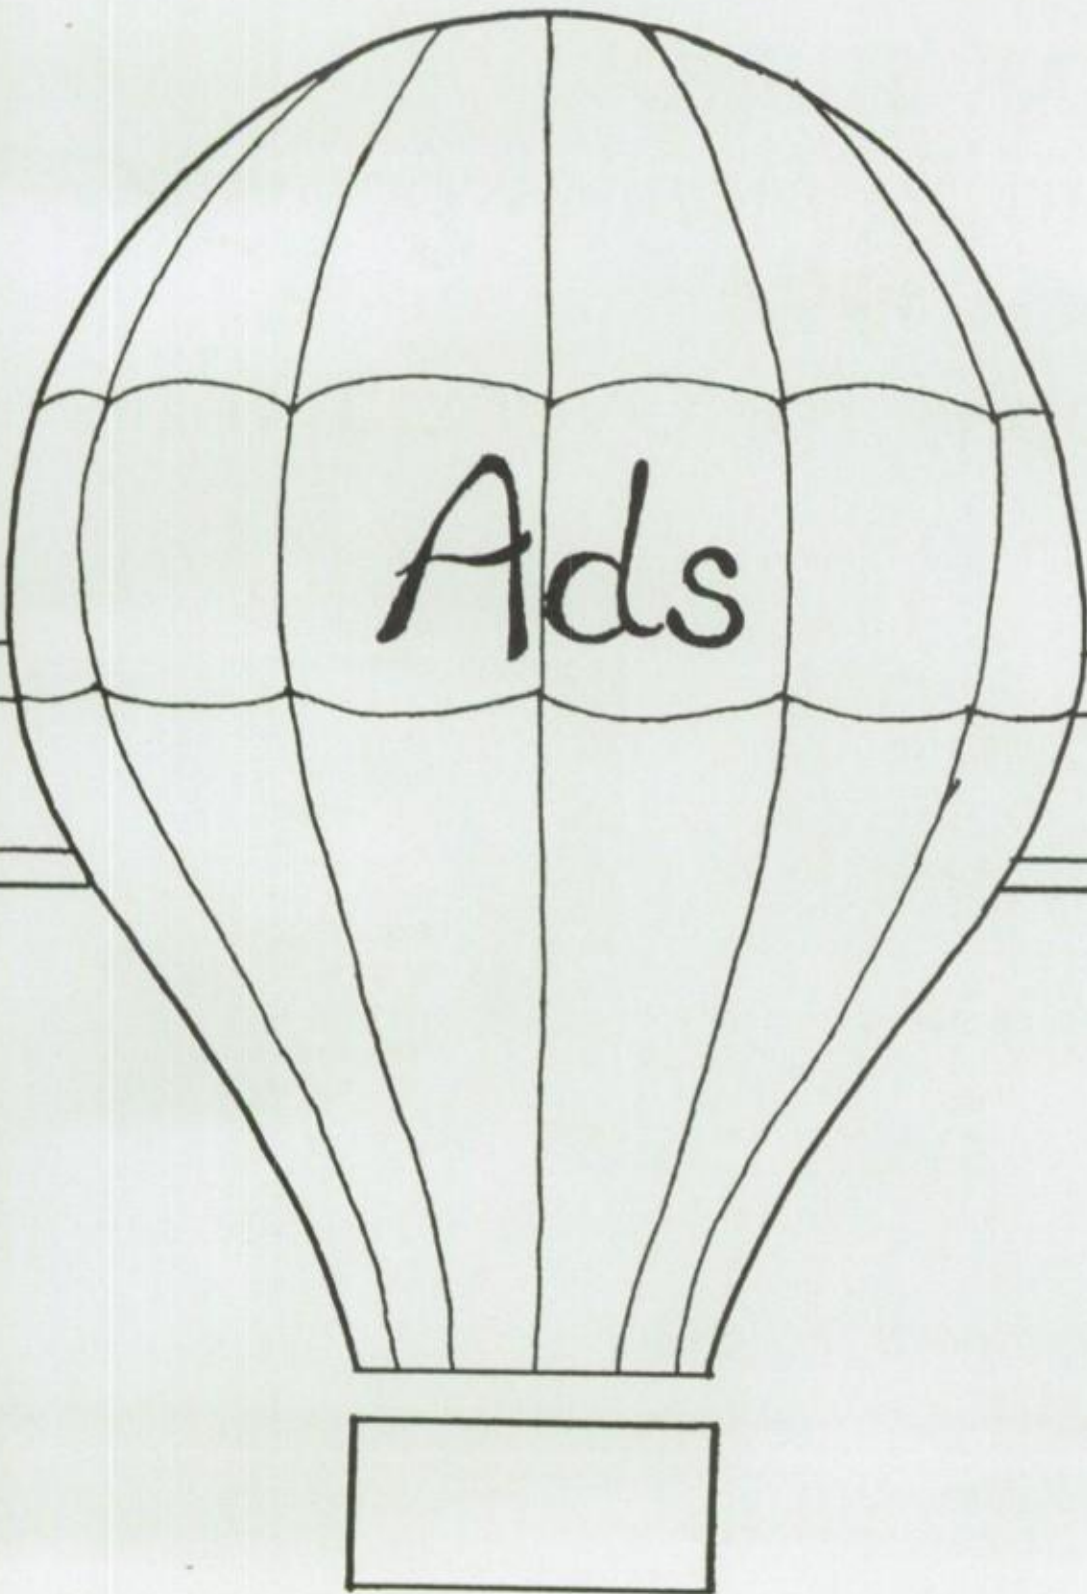

Once

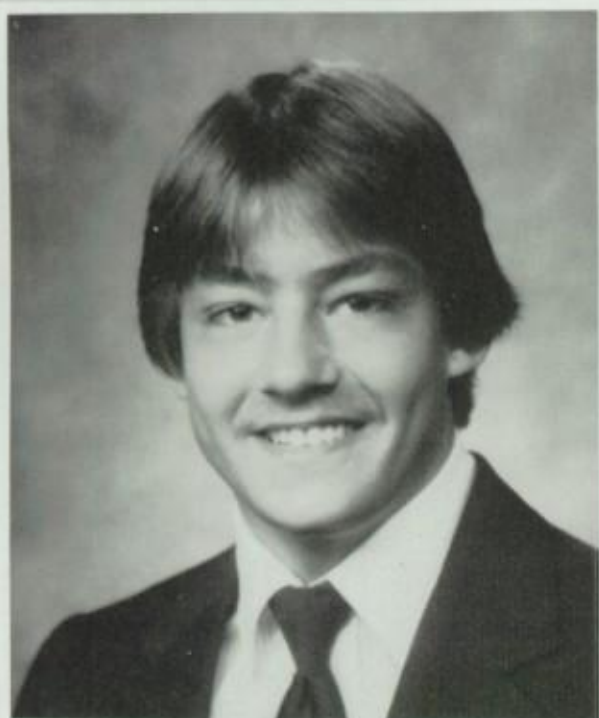

Once,
You were my friend.
You shared all your dreams,
Fantasies,
Experiences,
with me; but,
things changed.
Maybe it was you who changed,
Maybe it was me.
It was nobody's fault.
It just happened.
Now, when I see you,
we can again be Friends.

For Jeff

Turn around looking for you
But you're not there
Wishing we could tell you
How much we love you and really care.

You're gonna be fine now, and so are we
We're going to remember you
Your laugh, smile and dreams.
That's how you would want it to be.

Now, a final word to you
It's time we said good-bye
A single tear gently falls
And we finally begin to cry.

We'll Always Love You Fry!!!

Dedicated to Jeff Lutzke

Saying good bye was hard to do

The end of the year now has come
All things final, said and done.
A sad good bye was said to all;
For some it's forever, but not for all.

Looking back on years gone by,
Many will laugh but some will cry.
Both good times and bad were had by all,
Some were big and others small.

Through the years a collection was made;
A collection of memories to cherish and save.
Each individual's were unique and special,
Some they will share, and some never tell.

1 — Chris Maloney talked with a recruiter about plans for the future. 2 — Students came to Flambeau signing to remember the good times and say good bye. 3 — Lincoln High School will serve as a memory of good times. 4 — Punk day will be remembered by students like Shaun Trindal.
